

CHOOSE MORC

VOCATIONAL SERVICES

At MORC Inc., we are committed to helping individuals with developmental disabilities expand their employment opportunities. We work with vocational providers, school districts, transportation agencies, state agencies and other community resources to offer those we serve a variety of employment options.

WHAT TYPES OF VOCATIONAL SERVICES ARE AVAILABLE?

Transitioning from School to Adult Life: MORC is there to work with students and parents and schools to ensure a seamless transition from school to adult life. This includes ensuring transition is based on family values, culture and student choice. We help with transition by attending IEPs, Family Nights, or other events to provide resources to families.

Out of Home Non-Vocational Services: This includes assistance with learning, remembering, or improving self-help, social and daily living skills.

Pre-Vocational Services: This includes training in things like staying on task, direction following and building relationships with others to help individuals get ready for work.

MORC

Skill-Building Assistance: This includes activities to increase financial independence and/or engage in meaningful activities such as higher education and/or volunteering.

Supported Employment: This includes supports to help find and maintain paid work in the community.

HAVING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

MORC helps individuals realize the dream of owning their own business through Supported Self-Employment and Microenterprises.

Supported Self-Employment: This means an individual with a disability owns their own business, while receiving support and ongoing assistance with business operations.

Microenterprises: This is a business with less than five employees, usually just the owner, with limited earning capacity. Microenterprises have played an important role in helping individuals with significant disabilities earn income and engage in meaningful activities of their own choosing.
